

Multiuse License illustration

General license information

When purchasing from MediaStock you are prohibited from using the illustration outside of the agreed terms for each purchased license as described below.

Use of the illustration under the licensing terms also involves suitable crediting of the content as described below.

Licenses are non-exclusive and non-transferable. The licenses expire five years after purchase date and are limited to the agency/company that purchased the license. The licenses are not transferable as part of syndicated publications unless additional permissions are granted, and may involve additional licensing fees. By licensing the illustration the licensee is not granted any future right or lawful claim for selling future reproduction rights of the illustration.

The purchase of the license does not grant the agency/company the right to modify the illustration in any way. Any modifications must be approved by Mediafarm ApS.

Specific Multiuse License information

The purchase of a Multiuse License provides the purchaser with the rights to use the illustration in any digital and/or printed media. The licence grants the purchaser the right to use the illustration in screen publications, presentations, magazines, websites, books and similar publications.

Furthermore the license provides the purchaser the rights to use the illustration as cover Artwork, in advertising, for film and tv.

The rights to use the illustration are limited to the license holder, are non-transferable, and do not involve the right for resale of the illustration.

All licensed illustrations should bear legible illustration credit, visible on the same page as the illustration.

The illustrations should be credited "Illustration by www.mediafarm.dk"

When used on online, web, or digital media that includes active links to the internet, the illustration credit text should also be active-link to www.mediafarm.dk.
