

Screen License illustration

General license information

When purchasing from MediaStock you are prohibited from using the illustration outside of the agreed terms for each purchased license as described below.

Use of the illustration under the licensing terms also involves suitable crediting of the content as described below.

Licenses are non-exclusive and non-transferable. The licenses expire five years after purchase date and are limited to the agency/company that purchased the license. The licenses are not transferable as part of syndicated publications unless additional permissions are granted, and may involve additional licensing fees. By licensing the illustration the licensee is not granted any future right or lawful claim for selling future reproduction rights of the illustration.

The purchase of the license does not grant the agency/company the right to modify the illustration in any way. Any modifications must be approved by Mediafarm ApS.

The purchase of the license does not grant the agency/company the right to use the illustration in any form of advertising or branding of any agency/company.

Specific Screen License information

The purchase of a Screen License provides the purchaser with the right to use the illustration within digital and on screen publications and presentations. The publication may be in any digital form, with no limitation to the number of copies or times the illustration is used/viewed. However, the rights to use the illustration are limited to the license holder, it is non-transferable, and do not involve the right of any kind of resale to 3rd-party.

An illustration licensed with a Screen License cannot be reproduced in any printed format (without the purchase of an additional Print License).

The license does not cover using the illustration in tv, film and/or any form of advertising. Please refer to the Multiuse License instead.

All licensed illustrations should bear legible illustration credit, visible on the same page as the illustration.

The illustrations should be credited "Illustration by www.mediafarm.dk"

When used on online, web, or digital media that includes active links to the internet, the illustration credit text should also be active-link to www.mediafarm.dk.
